

ON: HAVING A LITTLE FUN

Are you ready to have a little fun today, Dear One?

If your answer is yes, then keep an eye out, because in making that decision you have just triggered a shift in your mind, heart, and body, and in your expectations of the day, and that shift has triggered a shift in your emotions, energy, and spirit, and in the world around you. The universe has already responded by shifting itself to bring you what you want, and as a result, opportunities for fun are already on their way to you!

All that is left for you to do is to remember to choose them when they get here.

If your answer is no, Dear One, it's not too late for you to change your mind.

ON: NOW VS. LATER

If you are waiting for things to get better before you think a better thought, Dear One, you could be waiting a long time. If you think a better thought right now, things would start getting better right now.

So, it looks like you've got a decision to make.

Do you want things to start getting better now or do you want to continue to wait?

ON: CREATIVE WRITING

You are the author of your own story, Dear One. You are the one who decides what kind of story it will be.

So what do you feel like writing about today?

- Adventure, trust, love, compassion, forgiveness, bravery, or perseverance?
- Taking a risk, reaching out, starting a new relationship, or ending an old one?
- Fear, guilt, getting by, playing it safe, or making excuses?
- Jealousy, anger, ego, hatred, frustration, giving up, or giving in?

You've got total creative freedom. Write yourself well!

ON: WITHOUT A DOUBT

We don't doubt, Dear One, not even for a second, your ability to do or be or have or create anything you want—and we never will.

Imagine how different your life, your relationships, your experiences, and your choices would be if you didn't doubt it either.